SPECIFICATIONS

Overview

This 1987 Blackfin 36 Convertible is in remarkable condition, almost as if it just left the showroom. Initially a freshwater vessel from the Great Lakes until 2006, it was acquired by the current owner from its first owner. That year, brand new diesel engines were installed, and continuous upgrades have been made since. The yacht features a galley on the upper level, a master stateroom at the front, and a guest stateroom with two bunks. It includes a private head with a separate, enclosed shower. The engine room, along with the engines and generator, is impeccably maintained.

The expansive aft cockpit and ample seating on the flybridge offer excellent visibility from the upper helm.

This 1987 Blackfin 36 Convertible is a rare gem in the yacht sales market. It's arguably the finest 1987 model available for those looking to buy a yacht in its current boat location.
