Owner Experience Review

Owners typically deploy the 26r Enclosed from Ocean Alexander for family cruising and owner-operator passages; its layouts and systems are arranged to support long-distance voyaging. The main deck's open-plan arrangement provides extended sightlines likened by reviewers to lofts or penthouses, while the lower deck houses a full-beam master suite flooded with natural light. Across as many as four cabins, sleeping arrangements for eight are comfortable for family escapes and entertaining, complemented by a beach club, a substantial swim platform, and several al fresco social areas from a bow lounge to an upper saloon—yielding interior volume that feels unusually spacious for an 85' vessel.

At sea, the yacht is engineered for offshore seakeeping: hard chines and a plumb bow act to deflect spray and ensure a steady, seakindly motion in sea trials. Maneuvering in tight quarters is made easier with joystick controls and a contemporary electronics package; owner reports reference the standard MAN 1650-hp installation, with optional higher-output engines reported to approach mid-20-knot speeds (roughly 24–27 knots in some reports). Routine maintenance is simplified by an uncluttered engine room with straightforward access, factory owner orientation at delivery, and 24/7 on-call support. Notable technical features include twin MAN V12 mains, Kohler generators, Delta-T ventilation, and coatings applied with epoxy primers and Alexseal polyurethane paint.

Pros and Cons

- Blue-water seakeeping with hard chines and a plumb bow delivers a solid, spray-deflecting ride on long passages.
- Open-plan main deck and full-beam master, plus beach club and multiple outdoor lounges, create unusually generous living space for an 85' yacht.
- Uncluttered engine room, owner orientation, and 24/7 support simplify ownership and routine maintenance.
- Mid-20-knot top-end requires optional uprated engines; the standard MAN 1650-hp package is tuned more for cruising.
- Sleeping for up to eight across four cabins may not suit larger guest parties or charter groups.
- Marketed for day-charter as occasional commercial use rather than a high-capacity charter platform.
