Owner Experience Review

Owners portray the BX 25 FS from SEA HUNT as a true multi role boat—equally at home on inshore and bay fishing for flats and redfish as on family outings to the sandbar or casual day cruises. The 8'6" beam, forward facing seating, and expansive casting deck allow quick transitions between fishing and leisure, while helm layout supports comfortable day trips. On the water it feels planted and stable for a 25' bay boat, copes well with chop, and will do fair weather nearshore runs; owners credit the relatively dry forward ride to the Carolina flare and a 15° deadrise.

Reported performance with a Yamaha 300 engine is approximately 4.0–4.2 MPG around 3,000 rpm, with top speeds reaching the mid 50s mph. Many owners install SeaDek/EVA for added comfort, and note that factory cushions and canvas are nice but will age and likely need replacement over time. Routine maintenance typically centers on annual outboard servicing, maintaining Lenco trim tab settings, and monitoring scuppers and drainage—some owners mention slow drains and a tendency for the aft deck to retain water, especially when weight is concentrated aft. Several owners describe SEA HUNT as a dependable mid tier builder with no wood to rot; minor gelcoat chips or stress crack touchups are considered normal upkeep.

Pros and Cons

• Versatile for inshore/bay fishing, family sandbar outings, and relaxed day cruising.
• Stable, assured handling with a relatively dry forward ride thanks to the Carolina flare and 15° deadrise.
• Owner reported fuel economy of 4.0–4.2 MPG at about 3,000 rpm and top speeds in the mid 50s mph with a Yamaha 300.
• Aft deck can become wet when passengers or heavy loads are positioned aft.
• Scuppers/drainage may be slow; some owners report the rear deck holding water.
• Cushions, canvas, and EVA/SeaDek will wear and may require eventual replacement.
