OVERVIEW

PHOBOS is a 43-meter motor yacht conceived by Italian designer Gian Paolo Nari and currently being built at Aegean Yacht in Turkey, marrying robust engineering with refined aesthetics. Imagined as the explorer variant of two sister hulls, she occupies a compelling place on a sub-500 GT superyacht platform, offering the endurance and rugged capability of an expedition vessel while preserving the polish and comfort of a luxury yacht.

Thoughtfully arranged for exploration, PHOBOS increases her capacity for tenders and water toys with a forward garage complemented by two open-air aft garages, providing practical deployment for an active owner. Inside, the accommodation plan welcomes up to twelve guests across six cabins; the Owner's suite exceeds thirty-seven square meters and benefits from a twelve-square-meter private terrace that opens to sweeping views to both port and starboard, an unusually generous feature for a vessel of this length.

Crew spaces are laid out to protect guest privacy and enable impeccable service, with three double cabins located forward and a captain's cabin directly adjoining the wheelhouse. Generous storage and carefully conceived technical areas support extended bluewater cruising, reinforcing PHOBOS's role as a true long-range cruiser for discerning owners.

Founded in 1976, Aegean Yacht brings nearly five decades of continuous superyacht craftsmanship to the project, combining time-honored boatbuilding traditions with modern construction techniques to produce an explorer motor yacht that is as dependable as it is forward-thinking.
