OVERVIEW

Conceived by Sanlorenzo, Hull No. 162 of the distinguished 500EXP line embodies the shipyard's explorer yacht creed, a contemporary continuation of its ocean roving design and engineering heritage. Named CASA F, she is a luxury motor yacht of rare presence, marrying exacting build standards with emphatic performance and enduring style. Owner enhancements and bespoke options in excess of €5 million lift her well beyond the yard's base specification, and a meticulous three year project management programme steered every stage, from detailed specification review to the delivery of one of Sanlorenzo's most accomplished creations.

Her interiors, entirely custom, exude a cultivated warmth and refined restraint, while expansive exterior living areas introduce a degree of usability seldom found aboard a sub 500 GT superyacht. A generous beach club spills out onto an adjoining side balcony and houses a serene hammam spa alongside a fully equipped gym; above, the broad sundeck is crowned by a saltwater swimming pool for alfresco relaxation. The private owner's suite opens directly onto its own secluded terrace, and the decorative scheme is curated with premium pieces from Baxter, Paola Lenti, EXTETA and Promemoria, upholstered and dressed in fabrics and drapery by Loro Piana.

Artisanal materials and joinery are everywhere: bespoke marbles, custom cabinetry with fluted detailing and herringbone parquet underfoot lend tactile richness. Entertainment has been elevated fleetwide with a comprehensive Bang & Olufsen audio upgrade, supported by a dedicated DJ station and cinema experiences both inside and al fresco. A full Crestron automation ecosystem harmonises lighting, AV and climate control, while enhanced satellite connectivity and onboard servers ensure uninterrupted communications.

Practical innovations include a custom hydraulic transformer swim platform that doubles as an elegant sea ladder for simplified tender and water access. Long range autonomy is assured by increased fuel capacity, upgraded watermakers and a thoroughly modernised navigation and communications suite—true hallmarks of an expedition superyacht. Fully compliant with the REG Code and flying the Malta flag, this tri deck 500EXP class vessel delivers bluewater capability, genuine ocean going endurance and the considered elegance expected of a contemporary expedition yacht and luxury motor yacht.
