OVERVIEW

Sleek, cared-for, and radiating polish, this 24-foot, 2008 sport cruiser marries the presence of a larger yacht with trailer-friendly versatility. Built in the United States with robust fiberglass construction and advanced composite materials, it offers a quietly confident, solid ride and a level of refinement that makes every harbor approach feel deliberate and elegant. The deck is laid in non-skid fiberglass, bordered by stainless-steel hardware and a sweeping windshield that shelters the cockpit without sacrificing panoramic views.

Propulsion is provided by a single MerCruiser, an engine renowned for its smooth, assured acceleration and effortless planing. The throttle response is crisp, cruising is efficient, and the handling remains sure-footed whether you are cutting through afternoon chop or easing into a sunset anchorage. It is an ideal platform for unhurried day cruises, waterfront dining excursions, and lively watersports alike.

On deck, the arrangement favors sociability and comfort, centering on a generous cockpit with wraparound seating that invites conversation and easy entertaining. Plush marine-grade upholstery and abundant under-seat storage combine with a convertible sun lounge to encourage long, languid afternoons at anchor. A broad swim platform with a stainless ladder simplifies water access, while plentiful cupholders, a removable cockpit table, and clever stowage solutions keep the area tidy, comfortable, and guest-ready.

The helm is designed with ergonomics in mind, delivering clear sightlines and a commanding driving position that keeps the skipper intimately connected to the water and the moment. Controls fall readily to hand and the layout reinforces confidence underway, whether piloting through tight marina traffic or setting a relaxed cruise.

At home in many guises—Day Boat, Express Cruiser, Sport Cruiser, Bowrider, Runabout, or Weekend Cruiser—this 24-footer strikes an enviable balance between manageable dimensions and upscale finish. For discerning boaters seeking a chic coastal companion with dependable MerCruiser power and the durability of fiberglass craftsmanship, it stands out: graceful at the dock, confident underway, and always prepared to turn a simple outing into a memorable escape.
