HELM DECK

DIRE WOLF is a 2011 PROTECTOR Tauranga 41 equipped with a proprietary Protector wraparound windshield featuring weather-tight side slide windows. The helm area offers Stidd pedestal seats for the helmsperson and navigator, along with dual wide Garmin displays at each station. Teak decks extend throughout, with walkaround cabin sidesteps for easy access to bow and stern, and a deck plan that includes port and starboard aft quarter seats. Lighting consists of three overhead red/white LED dome lights.

Safety and handhold features include outer cabin and walkaround Safe-T 316 stainless steel handrails, a forward cabin Safe-T 316 stainless steel handrail system, two 12-inch stainless steel cabin edge handrails, two 9-inch stainless steel overhead cabin handrails, a 58-inch stainless steel side cabin grab rail, two curved house roof rails, and a 76-inch U-shaped six-point stainless steel cabin top grab rail.

Storage and accommodations comprise two 22" x 30" x 8" storage cubbies, two 80" x 10.5" x 15" deep low-volume storage compartments beneath the port and starboard forward bunks, two 31" x 11" x 15" deep low-volume storage compartments beneath the port and starboard bunks, and watertight quarter seat console hatches for major electronics. A three-quarter crew locker sits outboard of the helmsperson and navigator seats, and there are two six-foot padded bunks with three-quarter shelves along the port and starboard bulkheads. Forward full bench seating is provided, and the cabin features lockable washboards.

Electrical and systems equipment include a Blue Sea Systems 12-unit fuse panel with clear-view cover. The helm deck also contains a fully enclosed finished head area with electric toilet, sink, linen storage, and six-foot standing room.

ACCESSORIES

Lighting includes four courtesy lights on the rear deck, two courtesy lights on the bow, and LED navigation and anchor lights. A full canvas package comprises a vertical drop, storage back, and forward bench cover. Anchoring and maneuvering systems consist of a Maxwell auto anchor system with dash control unit and a Side Power electric bow thruster with joystick control mounted on the dash. Trim control is handled by Lenco commercial trim tabs with auto retract gauge. Battery equipment includes Lifeline Group 24 engine batteries (one for each motor), a Lifeline Group 36 house battery, BEP battery switches on both Lifeline Group 24 batteries with dual voltage sensitive relay modules, and a BEP emergency battery parallel switch.

HULL and DECK

DIRE WOLF is a 2011 PROTECTOR Tauranga 41, 41 ft. The hull is a 1” solid hand-laid fiberglass construction featuring Protector’s high-impact design with proprietary sponson cutouts for seamless sponson integration and a solid four-stringer system. Six performance strakes and chines run along the hull, complemented by extra 316 stainless steel grab rails on both external and internal surfaces, together with a 316 stainless steel bow towing eye and a forward stainless Sampson post. Deck arrangements showcase teak-laid decking and teak gunnel walking rails atop the sponsons, a self-draining anchor locker and a separate forward anchor locker with a 43” wide by 36” deep forward storage compartment in the bow, and port and starboard teak transom steps leading to a rear swim/entry platform with a stainless steel swim ladder.

Ventilation and drainage features include port and starboard self-bailing scupper caps, port and starboard 2.5” self-bailing water drains on the forward deck, and port and starboard watertight amidship lockers plus port and starboard watertight aft lockers configured for mounting independent remote engine systems. Deck hardware comprises two 8” stainless retractable cleats on the stern quarters. Safety and systems include a self-bailing anchor locker, a 2000 GPH manual bilge pump and an 1100 GPH automatic bilge pump, and a fixed electric head with a 15 gallon sewage holding tank.

FUEL

DIRE WOLF is a 2011 PROTECTOR Tauranga 41, equipped with a 250 gallon fuel tank. Both port and starboard fueling stations are fitted, and the fuel tank features longitudinal and transverse baffles. The vessel includes dual fuel tank pickups and dual Racor water separators with transparent bowls, one per motor. A removable WEMA fuel sender provides convenient access for tank cleaning and inspection. Shestakov Yacht Sales
