OVERVIEW

Built in 2003, this motor yacht cruiser stretches to 45 feet overall with a generous 14-foot beam, and its deep V fiberglass hull is designed to deliver a dry, poised ride and confident seakeeping that turns longer passages into relaxed voyages. Power comes from twin Cummins inboard diesels, combining strong torque with efficient, refined performance that provides lively acceleration and a steady, economical cruise. A 335 gallon fuel capacity paired with a 100 gallon freshwater reserve equips her for extended coastal range throughout the United States, from leisurely weekend harbor hops to more ambitious island runs. The clean, low maintenance fiberglass deckwork reflects a practical, purposeful design that leads into a welcoming interior laid out for close care cruising; generous proportions create a sense of space while preserving intimacy. Sleeping accommodations for three are complemented by two heads arranged for privacy and ease whether at anchor or underway, and ample stowage simplifies provisioning for longer trips. Seamless flow from cockpit to salon, the muted presence of inboard diesels beneath the soles, and carefully considered details throughout confirm her place as a refined American classic in the cruiser category—an elegant sanctuary for owners who value capability, composure, and the enduring pleasures of life on the water.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION

Boat highlights

Beautifully presented and striking in a dark blue hull, this 2003 Sea Ray 420 Sundancer combines the elegant presence of a standout express cruiser with the livable comforts that have made this model so popular. The layout is thoughtfully arranged for privacy and convenience: the aft cabin is fitted with solid doors rather than curtains, delivering a true second stateroom for family or overnight guests, while the salon is bright and welcoming thanks to a flush-mounted skylight with a retractable sunshade that allows abundant natural light when desired.

Powered by twin Cummins CTA 8.3M3 Diamond Series diesel engines rated at 450 HP apiece and backed by an Onan 9 kW generator, Amber Leigh offers assured performance and dependable electrical support away from the dock. A generous swim platform extends the living space on the water and the cockpit and foredeck are laid out for relaxed cruising and effortless entertaining.

A number of thoughtful upgrades and onboard conveniences elevate the onboard experience, including spare props, a Sunbrella bimini with cockpit enclosure and protective equipment covers, vinyl-covered sun pads, and snap-in all-weather cockpit carpet. The navigation and helm package is comprehensive: a Raymarine A Series touchscreen chartplotter with sonar is paired with a Raymarine RL80C GPS/Plotter, a Raymarine ST7001 autopilot, and a Ray 240 VHF radio with DSC plus a remote speaker, all integrated and monitored through the Sea Ray systems monitor.

Comfort and entertainment are well catered for with a Clarion stereo featuring a remote controller and weatherproof cockpit speakers, a central vacuum system, and trim tabs for optimized running attitude. The galley is appointed with a Kenyon Euro Kera two-burner glass cooktop complete with a hard cover and safety interlock, while cold-weather protection is provided by a Boatsafe bilge heater. The spacious salon with its skylight and retractable sunshade reinforces the inviting atmosphere throughout the yacht.
