Azimut - Magellano 74 - 2012

Built in 2012 by the celebrated Italian shipyard Azimut, this Magellano 74 is a 74-foot embodiment of refined seafaring, meticulously maintained by its owner and fashioned for effortless long-range cruising. Twin CAT C18 DITA engines provide confident propulsion, while Seakeeper zero-speed stabilizers ensure calm, steady motion even at anchor, promising smooth and stable voyages in every sea condition.

The yacht's interior and exterior spaces have been thoughtfully optimised for comfort and conviviality. An expansive salon houses a secondary galley for discreet service and a dining area that accommodates up to eight guests, all framed by a 360-degree panorama of the sea. A gracious relaxation area features an L-shaped leather sofa facing a retractable television mount, with additional poufs adding informal seating and warmth.

Below deck, accommodation is sumptuous and intelligently arranged. A full-beam master suite offers ample privacy and luxury, while the VIP cabin boasts a king-size bed and a further guest cabin is fitted with twin beds. A guest bathroom, accessible from the corridor, and finely considered layouts throughout enhance livability and practicality. The aft lower deck conceals a fully equipped main galley reached by a separate staircase for truly discrete service, and a dedicated laundry area equipped with a washer and dryer supports extended cruising. A fourth cabin with bunk beds and a desk provides versatile use as an extra guest room or crew quarters.

With its timeless Italian lines, exceptional livability and superior performance, the Azimut Magellano 74 stands as a compelling alternative to the Ferretti 75, Princess 72, Sunseeker Manhattan 74, Prestige 750 and Absolute Navetta 73.
