OVERVIEW

Unmistakably American in origin, this 2009, 78-foot luxury motor yacht presents a commanding, purposeful profile that marries refined styling with serious seakeeping. Built of durable fiberglass composite with matching fiberglass decks for easy upkeep, the yacht's expansive 20-foot beam creates unusually generous interior spaces and ample deck real estate, while a deep, confidence-inspiring hull form delivers a steady, reassuring ride offshore. Twin Caterpillar inboard diesels provide the dependable power and hushed authority that discerning yachting families demand, and a robust 2,700-gallon fuel capacity enables extended cruising—perfect for coastal passages, island-hopping and leisurely weekends at anchor. With 330 gallons of fresh water aboard, onboard comfort is preserved for longer stays, underscoring the vessel's purpose as a refined, long-range cruising motor yacht built to travel. Within, the atmosphere emphasizes light, fluid circulation and understated luxury: an expansive salon invites relaxed conversation, a well-appointed galley encourages culinary creativity, and carefully composed lounging areas create a seamless transition between interior and exterior living for effortless entertaining. Private quarters include a serene owner's suite and welcoming guest cabins, all finished to an elegant standard appropriate to a fine motor yacht, while full climate control and excellent sound attenuation enhance comfort and privacy on every passage. On deck, broad walkways and generous social zones provide ideal settings for alfresco dining and sunset gatherings, illustrating the yacht's rare equilibrium of glamour and functionality. For those who value the timeless presence of premier motor yachts paired with the assured performance of Caterpillar propulsion, this United States-built 2009 example stands as a compelling, bluewater-capable expression of luxury yachting.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION

Main description

This 2009 Cheoy Lee represents thoughtful investment, marrying a celebrated hull with an almost complete renewal that has left very little of the original fit and finish aboard. Under the stewardship of experienced yachtsmen and their captain, she underwent an extensive 2023 refit that completely revitalized the interior, while her twin Caterpillar C-32 engines display fewer than 1,000 hours. Every surface and comfort has been addressed: cushions, flooring and countertops were all replaced, a bespoke dining table was built to suit the space, and the heads were fully refurbished. The accommodation plan features three staterooms and three heads alongside a charming country-style kitchen, creating an excellent platform for prolonged cruising, with separate berthing for two crew. Handling is made simple by both bow and stern thrusters, and her upkeep is fully documented with all services current and complete records on file. Carefully modernized and maintained to a high standard, she is ready to receive her next owners.
