OVERVIEW

Nestled among the crystalline atolls of the Maldives, this 98-foot motor yacht, built in 2004, fuses Italian aesthetic refinement with true performance pedigree. Her composite fiberglass hull, a gracefully executed modified V, promises a composed, dry passage that feels at once planted and responsive; twin MTU inboard diesels summon a lively 31 knots and settle into an effortless 27-knot cruise that turns island-hopping into pure pleasure.

A generous 23-foot beam gives the yacht an immediate impression of volume and stability, revealed as you step onto the expansive aft terrace—an elegant outdoor salon for dining beneath the sky or sipping cocktails at sunset. Broad side decks lead forward to a capacious foredeck sun lounge, the yacht's low profile and immaculate fiberglass surfaces speaking to purposeful design and easy upkeep. The broad swim platform creates a seamless bridge between yacht and sea, providing straightforward access for boarding, snorkeling, or launching water toys.

Inside, the Carlo Garleazzi interior marries contemporary lines with warm, tactile materials. Large windows flood the salon with natural light, emphasizing fine joinery, considered textures, and a palette that feels both modern and timeless. A dedicated dining area frames unforgettable meals with sea views while a discreetly placed galley enables efficient service. Attentive soundproofing and thoughtful engineering ensure quiet passages, even when the yacht is running at speed.

Accommodation is arranged to welcome up to eight guests in comfort and privacy during extended cruises, with four beautifully appointed heads, elegant stone and wood finishes, and carefully planned storage that anticipates life aboard. A separate crew area for two preserves discretion and enhances service so guests may fully relax.

Underway, the modified V-hull gives confident tracking and nimble handling, allowing access to lagoons and sheltered anchorages thanks to a shallow draft of just over six feet. Substantial fuel capacity supports longer itineraries and generous freshwater stores make living aboard effortless. In the engine room, the twin MTUs underscore reliability, performance, and the enduring pedigree of German engineering—ready to depart on a moment's notice and arrive with undeniable presence.

This 98-footer occupies the sweet spot of the 100-foot class: expansive enough to feel like a private retreat yet agile enough to chase horizons. Whether imagined as brisk day hops between atolls or languid weeks at anchor, she is a refined synthesis of speed, space, and style—an elegant sanctuary with the heart of a sport yacht.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION

Introduction

Significant price reduction. Experience unparalleled elegance and performance aboard the 2004 Azimut 98 Leonardo, a luxury Italian motor yacht for discerning owners. This striking yacht exemplifies Italian craftsmanship, with sleek, aggressively sculpted lines, sophisticated styling, and exceptional comfort that deliver megayacht amenities in a manageable 100-foot platform. Stand on the bow of the purposeful hull and feel the surge as twin 2,000-hp MTU diesels propel the Leonardo to a 37-mph top speed, a thrilling testament to her sporting character. Inside, an airy, expansive salon flows effortlessly around inviting sofas, a long bar, and an entertainment center, with rounded glass panels enclosing the aft area; slide the electronically controlled panels back and the salon opens seamlessly to alfresco living. Below, four staterooms include a full-beam master suite, creating a private sanctuary that pairs volume with grace.

Interiors

The accommodations are conceived for true long-range comfort: a full-beam master suite centered on a king-size bed with an en-suite bathroom and a private office, complemented by 3 guest staterooms, each with its own en-suite and generous storage. Two of the guest staterooms incorporate discreet Murphy beds, bringing the total to 10 guest berths without sacrificing space or elegance. Dedicated service areas include 2 separate crew quarters to ensure quiet, attentive hospitality around the clock.

Remarks

The 2004 Azimut 98 Leonardo blends style, comfort, and performance to rare effect—an opportunity to acquire a fabulous Italian luxury yacht at an excellent price. Fastidiously serviced and thoughtfully updated, she presents in excellent condition, with videos taken on 6 August 2025 available to share with serious buyers. The seller is highly motivated; arrange your private viewing today.

Key features

Measuring 98 ft (29.9 m) in length with a beam of 22.9 ft (7 m) and a draft of 6.2 ft (1.9 m), this Leonardo offers 4 spacious staterooms with 2 additional Murphy beds for up to 10 guests and 4 bathrooms, all framed by a sleek, open-plan salon and dining area. A gourmet galley is fitted with high-end appliances, including a deep freezer, while the expansive, extra-long flybridge invites open-air indulgence with a wet bar, a bar counter, a hot tub, a BBQ, and broad sunbathing zones. Practical features abound: a tender garage for effortless launch and retrieval, teak cockpit and side-decks for secure footing, a bow thruster for precise maneuvering, a Kohler generator and a watermaker for self-sufficiency, and advanced navigation and entertainment systems for confident passagemaking. Performance is assured by twin MTU 16V 2000 engines rated at 2,000 HP each.

Manufacturer provided description

The Azimut 98 Leonardo fuses the thrill of an open boat with the pedigree and refinement of a mega luxury yacht. Expansive decks frame the experience, with a generous foredeck sunbathing area and, above, an upper deck that hosts a Jacuzzi and a bar embraced by an additional sunbathing zone. The bow is purpose-built for guest comfort, crowned by a large sunpad that invites lingering afternoons at sea. Dynamic, graceful lines and notably generous interior volume make her a truly spectacular luxury yacht. The Azimut 98 Leonardo was designed by Stefano Righini, with a bright, contemporary interior by Carlo Garleazzi.
