OVERVIEW

VALQUEST is a 40m all-aluminium luxury sailing superyacht crafted by Bloemsma Van Breemen in the Netherlands at their Makkum facility. Her interiors were conceived by the renowned British studio Dubois, and she was delivered in 2009.

A true performance cruising yacht, VALQUEST stands out for her striking silver hull, sleek low-profile wheelhouse, and clean, flush decks. Designed as a bluewater cruiser, she features substantial fuel capacity and abundant storage, enabling effortless long-range passages with confidence and independence.

Below, VALQUEST reveals a modern, refined atmosphere, pairing high-gloss mahogany joinery with crisp white leather. A semi-open, split-level saloon floods with natural light and maintains clear sightlines, creating a sophisticated, welcoming space for relaxing and entertaining.

Accommodation is arranged across four ensuite cabins: a full-beam owner's suite, two double staterooms, and one twin. Each is finished with premium materials and thoughtful detailing, providing privacy and exceptional comfort for every guest.

On deck, she is oriented toward outdoor living. The sheltered aft cockpit invites alfresco dining, while generous lounging zones amidships and on the foredeck offer both sun and shade beneath a retractable forward canopy.

Powered by a single Caterpillar engine, VALQUEST cruises at 11 knots and reaches 13 knots, with a 3,000-nautical-mile range at cruising speed. She carries 18,045 litres of fuel, underscoring her credentials as a long-range luxury sailing yacht and bluewater performance cruiser.
