OVERVIEW

The stated Current Price is provided as a guideline; reasonable offers will be welcomed and carefully considered.

The 1997 Hunter 37 stands as a timeless cruising sailboat born of Cherubini design traditions, marrying bluewater assurance with the relaxed handling desirable for coastal passages. At 37 feet overall, she rewards the helmsman with a composed, predictable manner and stable behavior in a variety of conditions, offering the confidence owners seek for both short cruises and longer voyages.

Below deck, an intelligently proportioned layout presents two comfortable cabins, a well-appointed and efficient galley, a proper head, and an open, airy saloon that feels both practical for extended passages and indulgent for a couple or small family in search of a capable coastal cruiser. For those who value easy handling without sacrificing offshore composure, this Hunter 37 remains an elegant and lasting choice among monohull cruising yachts.

This example benefits from a more recent repower showing low hours and has been ashore for several months; she will benefit from a fresh detailing, routine seasonal commissioning, and a prudent inspection of onboard systems before her next cruise. Prospective buyers are invited to step aboard, assess her condition, and submit an offer based on their inspection.

No trailer is included with the sale. Nationwide transport can be arranged through professional marine carriers, with custom cradles available and delivery to a port for international shipment upon request; full logistics coordination and firm quotations can be provided.

Please consult the Motors and Machinery disclaimer with regard to the propulsion system and related equipment. Any photographs that portray the engine compartment or ancillary gear are for reference only; it is the buyer's responsibility to inspect and verify the actual condition. Do not assume that accessories or loose equipment are stored aboard—this vessel conveys strictly as viewed, and offers should reflect what is present at the time of inspection.
