OVERVIEW

2004 38-foot coastal cruiser powered by a single Yanmar diesel, she presents a refined silhouette and purposeful construction that marry classic lines with practical efficiency. Built in durable fiberglass with composite finishes for low-maintenance longevity, this 38-footer promises a quiet, economical cruise that turns weekend hops into comfortable passages and longer coastal runs into true relaxation.

Boarding reveals a thoughtful deck plan where broad, uncluttered side decks and a secure cockpit make line handling straightforward and entertaining effortless. The generous aft deck is tailored for sunset gatherings or alfresco dining and easily adapts to launching a tender from the swim platform, which provides quick water access and seamless tender handling. Clean fiberglass decks simplify upkeep while the cockpit layout inspires confidence underway. Below, large windows bathe the salon in natural light, creating an airy, open-plan interior that feels both sophisticated and welcoming. Quality joinery and sensible finishes frame a comfortable seating area, a well-appointed galley and abundant storage that supports extended cruising. Private accommodations offer a peaceful retreat at day's end, and the enclosed head is laid out for practical, real-world use to keep morning routines efficient and convenient.

Underway, the single Yanmar diesel is the dependable heart of the yacht—smooth-running, economical and reassuringly robust. The helm affords excellent sightlines and intuitive control, making this vessel perfectly suited to owner-operators who enjoy threading harbor channels as much as stretching out along the coast. The fiberglass hull contributes to a composed, stable ride, and the 38-foot overall length hits an ideal balance between seakeeping, onboard comfort and nimble maneuverability.

Lying in the United States and ready for her next chapter, this well-maintained cruiser will appeal to buyers seeking substance and style without the complexity of larger platforms. Equally at home for weekend escapes or coastal exploration, she is a graceful expression of practical luxury—easy to own, a joy to handle and endlessly inviting. Ideal for enthusiasts of Motor Yacht, Express Cruiser, Downeast, Trawler and Cruiser categories, this 38-foot yacht delivers capability, comfort and elegance driven by trusted Yanmar power.
