OVERVIEW

Meet MOXIE, a 2007 Fountaine Pajot Salina 48 thoughtfully outfitted for extended bluewater voyaging and genuine off-grid independence. This celebrated sailing catamaran marries classic, graceful lines with an authentic offshore pedigree, offering secure, comfortable and capable passagemaking within a refined multihull platform. She is a proven ocean traveller with modern, optimized sail handling—every control line runs aft to a single, raised helm, allowing effortless management and assured passage-making.

The elevated helm sits beneath a bespoke GRP hardtop with a full enclosure, providing commanding visibility both under sail and during tight maneuvers. With such clear sightlines and an enclosed wheel station, the broad cockpit remains uncluttered and inviting, taking full advantage of the generous 7.7 metre beam to create sweeping, sociable deck areas that speak to luxury cruising.

Celebrated already for volume and liveaboard comfort, MOXIE has been enhanced by a series of considerate owner upgrades. The galley is wholly electric, equipped with an electric cooktop, a convection oven and a microwave, while custom cabinetry accommodates an exceptional refrigeration capacity designed for long passages. Interior refinements have improved access to the heads, and the master suite has been fitted with a bespoke super-king berth and an upgraded mattress for superior rest offshore.

Recent systems work underscores her self-sufficient credentials: a lithium house bank paired with a substantial solar array, twin independent autopilots, diesel heating, a washing machine and refreshed upholstery. The scale and openness of saloon and cockpit create a seamless indoor–outdoor sanctuary with excellent circulation for life at sea. For sailors seeking a robust offshore yacht, elegantly prepared for autonomous adventure and true ocean passagemaking, MOXIE stands out among performance cruising multihulls.
