OVERVIEW

A poised 49-foot motor yacht from 2004, currently lying in the United States, presents a graceful silhouette fashioned in sturdy fiberglass—hull and decks alike—offering the quiet, confident motion that makes long runs and weekend getaways equally pleasurable. The balanced hull form and robust fiberglass construction combine to deliver strength, durability, and a low-maintenance ownership experience that suits both spirited outings and extended cruising. At the ship's core are twin Volvo Penta inboard diesel engines, dependable powerplants known for smooth torque delivery and fuel-efficient cruising. Twin-screw propulsion grants precise handling in tight slips and a surefooted, composed feel underway, while the yacht's engineering and weight distribution reinforce the calm, controlled ride that seasoned mariners appreciate. Living aboard is designed with natural ease: an inviting salon finished in warm, refined tones creates an atmosphere for conversation or quiet repose after a day at anchor. The practical, yacht-ready galley is laid out to keep meal preparation simple without isolating the cook from the company, and private sleeping accommodations are thoughtfully arranged for restful overnights. Flow between interior and exterior spaces is seamless, encouraging morning coffee at first light, convivial dinners on deck, and effortless transitions from sunlit hours to evening relaxation. On deck the boat feels substantial without sacrificing agility; uncluttered walkways, confident sightlines, and secure railings invite movement and connection to the water while purposeful hardware underlines the yacht's seagoing intent. The aft area is tailored for al fresco dining and lounging, making it easy to entertain or simply linger in the breeze. This 49-foot footprint is a true motor yacht at heart—equally at home as a lively express cruiser and as a comfortable coastal yacht—providing the volume and amenities sought by family-cruiser and liveaboard buyers. Twin inboard diesel power by Volvo Penta, a well-proportioned hull form, and fiberglass decks form a compelling platform for refined adventures.

If your plan includes unhurried passages, relaxed entertaining, and dependable performance wrapped in classic 2004 styling, this motor yacht delivers a confident, comfortable, and unmistakably inviting experience.
