Vessel Walkthrough

Grady White got it right when they introduced the 360 Express in 2005. Designed for offshore anglers, the 360 is a big triple-outboard fishing machine with more deck space and cabin comforts than any previous Grady-White model. Built on a Hunt-designed deep-V hull with moderate beam, the layout of the 360 is a cut above. A huge 48-gallon livewell and full rigging station complete with freshwater sink, insulated bait box, lockable drawers and knife/plier stowage are standard. Note that a digital thermostat controls the aft-deck refrigerator/freezer fish box. The centerline helm (with electronic controls) has a clever slide-out table/mini-dinette to starboard that, when stowed, converts into a lounge. Below decks, the 360's well-appointed cabin with two double berths, a convertible dinette, enclosed head/shower, full-service galley, and tons of rod storage rivals most express cruisers in space and amenities. Nearly everything is standard including a hardtop, bow thruster, air-conditioning, and generator (with separate fuel tank).
