MAIN DECK

TEREZA is unique right from the start of your walkthrough. At the swim platform is a tender garage, and outboard of it are windows looking down into the engine room. Through the windows are four Volvo Penta IPS engines prominently on display.

On the Port side is access to the hydraulic passarelle, while Starboard stairs lead up to the aft deck from the swim platform. A big sunpad is on centerline, and it's interesting to consider the design of the main deck area aft; the superstructure stops well forward, which gives the boat a lower profile as is appropriate for an express layout.

Wide side decks lead forward, with a bulwark topped by a flawlessly fashioned teak and stainless steel railing leading forward. At the bow atop the trunk cabin is a second sunpad. The deck forward is flat and convenient to walk around on. The megayacht-class quality and scantlings of the ground tackle, cleats, chocks is impressive. These oversize, chrome-plated fittings hint at the construction quality found throughout the yacht. The teak decks everywhere topside are beautifully fitted and finished, providing an effective nonskid surface underfoot while looking good in the process.

HELM

The helm station, with its high helm and companion seats presenting a commanding view of the horizon all around, is open to the rest of the salon, as well as to the atrium below. The electronics panel swivels on demand to suit the driver's height and position, whether seated or standing. Standing up, the wheel and engine controls, including the IPS joystick, are at your fingertips, while you can also run the yacht while sitting on the comfortable, well-padded and nicely contoured adjustable helm seat. Gauges and switches are ergonomically laid out and easy to reach and see.

ENGINE ROOM

TEREZA is powered by four Volvo Penta D6 diesel engines each with its own IPS 600 drive unit. This power plant is inherently free of the noise, vibration, and smokey exhaust normally associated with conventional shaft-driven yachts. With top speeds that can exceed 30 knots and a cruising speed of 28 knots you can be confident that you will arrive at your destinations quickly. Not only that but with the IPS system making it 40% more fuel efficient than any other yacht in her class your operating costs will be significantly less.

TEREZA offers a combination that no other yacht in its class can offer including, style, speed, easy maneuverability, owner operator possibility, four very large staterooms plus crew and the Lazzara brand known around the world for quality. It all adds up to the most enjoyable yachting experience!
