She is built on a modified-V hull with cored hull sides, a solid fiberglass bottom, and a deep 4 foot 8 inch keel. The 39’s versatile interior, with its light oak joiner work, is arranged with a mid-level galley a configuration that opens up the salon considerably. The guest cabin is uniquely designed to function either as a day lounge or as a private sleeping area with a lower berth and a fold down upper. Outside, the cockpit comes with a transom door and gate, molded tackle center, and in deck storage box. Additional features include a well arranged fly bridge helm console, side exhausts, and 5 bladed props.

Most of the 39’s came with Detroit’s this boat has the upgraded Caterpillar Power.
