EXTERIOR FINISH and CONSTRUCTION

The 72Hatteras hull is built with a resin-infused hull producing a more uniform hull thickness and providing an ideal resin to glass ratio. It is also one of the few boats today that provides a rich coat of protective polyurethane paint producing a hard outer surface that provides protection from those gel-coated porous surfaces found within other brands making it easier to repair and match than a gelcoat vessel.

On topsides, the boat features teak decking underneath the integrated hardtop, teak aft deck, teak on steps leading to the boat deck and teak steps to the sport deck.

HARDWARE AND MISCELLANEOUS

This boat is designed with longevity in mind as all stanchions and cleats are through bolted to aluminum backing plates that are encapsulated into solid fiberglass sections of the superstructure. Molded fiberglass UL approved tanks are placed between the stringers and glassed in place. All fuel tanks are constructed with a fire-retardant resin, and exposed surfaces are coated with a fire-retardant intumescent paint. Bulkheads and stringers are fully tabbed into the hull itself and the stringer system is built of a closed cell polyurethane foam to provide for stiff longitudinal support with no fear of water intrusion.

Wiring harnesses are tie-wrapped every 6 inches and secured every 18 inches with easy access. Wiring is color-coded and numbered at both terminal ends, and is well documented in the owner's manual. ## ENGINE COMPARTMENT AND BILGE

The engine room provides for easy access to equipment and the bilges are painted with a high gloss urethane paint for ease of cleaning. A forced air induction system draws cooling air for the engine room from the outside reducing saltwater intrusion into the engine room.

Attention to detail is evident in the many systems as you'll find rudder shelves made of pultruded fiberglass which is incredibly dense, strong and stiff material that will not corrode, rot, flex or break under strenuous use.
