Broker's Comments

Built on a solid fiberglass hull with a wide 14'11" beam and propeller pockets, to reduce draft, the interior of the 450 Voyager is very innovative. Because the galley is located in the isleway opposite the elevated lower helm (and not in the deckhouse as with most pilothouse designs), the salon is huge. There are two staterooms and two full heads below, and visibility from the lower helm—with its curved Ultraleather lounge—is superb. Facing settees and a built-in entertainment center dominate the salon with its oversized wraparound cabin windows. On deck, a flybridge extension partially shelters the cockpit where the engine room is accessed via the lazarette. On the downside, the side decks are narrow and galley storage is limited. Additional features include cherry interior joinery, a deck access door at the lower helm (a great convenience), a big swim platform, and an extremely well arranged flybridge.

This 450 Voyager is in very nice condition showing light use for her age and is PRICED TO SELL ! ! !
