Walkthrough:

The Aicon 64' is the definition of a Euro-Style Yacht. Curved and swift exterior lines give this vessel a unique style. Huge flybridge and cockpit give plenty of entertaining space. The interior is very well thought out; although, the exterior has a curvy feel one would imagine the interior would match, but that is not the case, the interior is quite linear and offer lots of open places. The designers though this feature out in since linear spaces offer more space than rounded contours.

The saloon offers lots of natural light with built in u-shape seating arrangement port and starboard with a brand new flat screen TV aft port connected to a 5 speaker Bose surround sound system that provide the ultimate experience to catch the latest flick or catch your favorite DIRECTV show at sea. Step forward onto the galley and find one of the key factors in Aicons design. Just like in any home guests tend to gather in the Kitchen and Aicon brought that concept onto the 64'. There is a low profile island that separates the galley from the dinette in order to define both spaces; however, the galley allows owners and guests to interact with each other during meal prep since most of the Yacht Owners in this size range of vessel are very hands on or even owner operators.

Port forward of the dinette/galley is the lower helm with a full set of controls and a brand new Garmin 7612 Display. Center forward are the stairs that lead into the three staterooms. Aft is the beam to beam master with a massive low profile (very Italian) bed that only seats 15" from the floor. There is plenty of head room in the Aicon averaging 6'8" and anyone will fall in love with the vistas provided by the port and starboard portholes.

Forward and starboard is the guest stateroom that features two twin berths and an ensuite head that is also accessible from the hallway. Forward is the massive VIP stateroom that features a queen size bed and an in-suite head
