Overview

The Azimut 86S has been hailed as one of the trendsetting open yacht designs. Its unique symmetrical square portholes, distinct red hull colour and beautifully appointed interior makes the Azimut 86S one of the hottest yachts.

Architect Stefano Righini, inspired by the winning style of the 68' model, designed the 86S with the same symmetrical series of square portholes. The deckhouse has the trade mark "shark's fin" windows.

The main deck offers innovative solutions for improved comfort on board and is superb for daytime activities. It is fitted with a dining table for eight and a cocktail cabinet with sink, fridge icemaker and barbecue. The sunbed's forward end turns into a sofa offering seating for the dining table. The aft platform may be used as a swim/dive platform, for a multitude of activities from swimming and diving to al fresco waterside dining. It also lowers to provide a system to retrieve the Zodiac Project 420 tender.

architect Carlo Galeazzi, has given an original touch to the interior with contrasting colours and materials. The floors are in wengé wood with bordered carpet inserts, while pale hues have been chosen for fabrics with burgundy inserts. The salon has four small sofas and a folding coffee table, opposite which there are the cocktail cabinet and accessories for leisure time such as a plasma TV set, a stereo and DVD system. The table in the salon can be used as a coffee table or fold-out dinner table. A superb stereo system provides surround sound. The lower deck accommodates the owner's master stateroom amidships, making the most of the full beam of the hull. It is fitted with a central queen-size bed illuminated by six ample portholes on both bulwarks, a study corner to port, a vanity to starboard and ensuite bathroom. The three double guest cabins include one VIP double and two Twins, all with ensuite bathrooms, are forward.
