SPECIFICATIONS

Overview

This one owner boat has been lightly used and has less than 600 hours. With an overall length of over 26 ft. she has a surprising amount of space and is perfect for water sports and fun on the water. Lots of storage for water toys and a bimini top when you need a little shade. Transom shower and bow shower for rinsing off when coming aboard. Large pump out style head on the port side with a sliding igloo cooler to starboard. With fresh bottom paint and new zincs she is ready for your adventures. Includes complete mooring canvas and full canvas with isinglass. Batteries are only two years old, new raw water impeller and risers and manifolds have been done. Always professionally maintained annually.

DETAILED INFORMATION

Power Boat Guide Says...

For many boating enthusiasts, Sea Ray is the gold standard for deck boats and bowriders. It's not always easy to tell the two types apart. They look very alike at first glance, and it's not until a closer look reveals the deckboats's fuller bow section and front boarding gate that the differences become apparent. Built on a solid fiberglass hull with a trailerable 8'6" beam, Sea Ray designers gave the 240 Sundeck slightly more freeboard than standard deckboats so she'll be dryer in big-water conditions. The versatile cockpit features comfortable seating for several guests. There are port and starboard lounge seats at the bow with molded armrests, grab bars, drink holders and storage beneath. The portside console houses a small head compartment, and ski/wakeboard storage is found in the cockpit floor. There's plenty of storage in the 240, more than might be expected in a boat this size. A hinged aft seat provides good engine access. Additional features include a cockpit table, tilt steering wheel, two built-in coolers (one a carry-on), freshwater shower, transom door, and an extended swim platform. A single 300hp MerCruiser I/O delivers 35+ knots top.
