DETAILED INFORMATION

Its All About The Size

---

With her triple counter rotating propellers pods systems, the Oceanic 140' engine room has been moved far in the aft section of the boat. This concept allowed the architects to install the main tender garage in the center of the hull. This allows for a 6-meter plus tender to be stored inside. Once launched, this space can also be used as a Beach Club. And apart from the practicability of this layout, its influence on the comfort is a true advantage. The tender bay being located between the engine room and the lower deck cabins is acting as a sound buffer, offering the lowest possible sound level in the industry. Even underway, you will enjoy astonishingly quiet times in the main saloon; thanks to the engine room installed under the outdoor deck unlike all yachts that size.

Outdoor Living

Finally, a yacht in a reasonable size package that accommodates family, friends and guests who can all enjoy their own privacy. The fly bridge with exterior and interior access offers not only wing stations for easier port maneuvers, it is also equipped with day head, bar, sofas and sun cushions with adequate protection from the wing shaped hard top. The transom garage offers enough volume to store jet skis, Seabobs® and an additional tender that can be used exclusively by the crew. Loading of supplies can be done via the tender bay not to interfere with your privacy when enjoying the aft deck saloon. An Oceanic 140' has simply been thought with your comfort and enjoyment in mind!

Floor To Ceiling Windows

All our custom-made interiors are first evaluated with a scale 1 mock-up that allows us and the interior designer to double check that everything works properly. The client can also inspect a "prototype" cabin to confirm the layout is what he expected from the layout plans. The main deck saloon and dining room will be extensively used, as it is a true extension of the outdoor spaces. The lateral floor to ceiling windows offer a spectacular sea view and flood this entire space with natural light. Onboard the Oceanic 140', you will continue watching the water from anywhere you seat in the saloon or the dining area. Further forward on this deck are the day head, galley, captain's cabin and the wheelhouse with two lateral doors. The port side stairwell leads down to the crew quarters while access to the guest cabins on the lower deck or up to the owner's deck is gained through a spectacular stairwell.

The Owners Private Deck

Access to the fully private owners deck is via the super-yacht styled stairwell that is also equipped with skylights. The master suite is divided in four different zones. Aft is the private terrace where you will enjoy breakfast protected by the overhang of the flying bridge, sip your favorite cocktail on the sofas and take a nap on the sun-pad. The aft section of the interior is devoted to the night zone with a king size bed, salon and office. Here too, the window surface is the most amazing feature a yacht can offer. Further forward is the full beam bathroom with toilets, tub, double marble sinks and an oversize all glassed shower with view to the outside. From here, you will gain access to your second terrace to the front that is in reality an outdoor spa. Where else will you be able to enjoy such comfort and privacy?

The Owners Bathroom

---

Suddenly, a bathroom becomes a living space, not only for Madame! Right above the edge of the tub, a panoramic window will allow you to relax while enjoying the sea view. The shower cabin, entirely surrounded by glass, offers the same view to the front, but the windshield that separates it from the outside offers a privacy system. No wonder why, like at home, you will feel your wife spends too much time in the bathroom...but she now has the best excuse! Here, as with the entire layout of the Oceanic 140', this is a design that can be adapted to your wishes, not only in terms of marble, wood or lacquers choices, but also in terms of space planning.

VIP Suites To Love

---

You always have the same concern. You don't want your VIP guests or close friends to feel tight in the usual cabins available in such size yacht. Onboard the 140' Oceanic, you will never feel ashamed to invite your business partners or close friends to cruise with you. The two VIP suites offer first class bathrooms with marble showers and a cabin with king size bed, oversized closets and corner sofa with coffee table. Another important feature is the large porthole that allows watching the sea during navigation. For the first time, lower deck cabins sound levels are so low that your guests will be able to keep sleeping while the boat heads to destination at a good 20 knots cruising speed.

Twin Convertible Cabins

---

The two twin guest cabins located forward of the lower deck are also very size generous. Not only the space between the two beds is unusually wide, the two beds can also slide to convert into a queen size. The level of luxury, both in the cabin and in the bathroom, is equivalent to the one you can find in the VIP suites. The décor is also fully customizable, thus, these illustrations are only indicative. One of these cabins can be turned into a gym if needed or into a home cinema with high tech sound systems by

Linn. Like in every other cabin, the double portholes allow to keep an eye on the water while the boat is underway. Like in every other cabin, your guests or kids will also be able to follow the navigation on the dedicated channel linked to the wheelhouse chart plotter. Located to the front, right before the crew quarters, the only noise you will be able to hear is the one of the waves being slashed by the hull.
