This Transpac Eagle 32 Pilothouse Trawler with flybridge is a sharp boat with many attractive features. Opening bulwark doors at the pilothouse make it easy to board without having to climb over the sides. The cockpit has built-in seating. Side decks with bulwarks make for easy access all around. A hydraulic stern thruster assists in docking. The flybridge is an enjoyable feature in a small trawler and there's space for deck chairs too. With her salty appearance and low-slung profile she is a pretty boat underway or at the dock. Inside she's very nautical with lots of teak. This boat should be considered by those who may be looking at small Nordic Tugs or American Tugs, and is very economical to operate.

Highlights Include:

- Garmin 4212 GPS/Chartplotter/Radar
- Garmin 710 Depthsounder
- Dickson Stern Thruster
- Lewmar Windlass
- Bruce 10kg Anchor

DETAILED INFORMATION

Accommodations

A surprisingly roomy salon with lots of light from opening windows. The starboard settee converts to over-under single bunks. The L-shaped galley has stainless steel countertops, a three-burner propane range, and good arrangements for storage space. L-shaped settee to port with an attractive and spacious table with drop-down leaf. The cold plate fridge is very large for a boat this size and is well insulated. Two steps up is a pilothouse with bench seat behind the helm. Rear-facing opening windows allow decent visibility aft. Pilothouse doors port and starboard access the side decks. And an opening center windshield window benefits ventilation. Forward is the master stateroom with storage in lockers and drawers. The head has a separate stand-up shower.

The cockpit has built in bench seating with storage lockers and a teak overlay deck. The flybridge has bench seating with room for more chairs when sitting at anchor or docked.

Red Dot cabin heat provided by engine.
