Overview

"Restless"

Is a 2003 65' Pacific Mariner she is hull # 35 of 65 and was designed by two very talented west coast naval architects. Her hull was designed by a master – William Garden. Garden has been building and designing boats since about 1935 and few people alive know more about boat design and efficiency. The exterior and interior were designed by Greg Marshall, who has many mega yachts to his credit. The Pacific Mariner 65 was conceived by boat builders who want to give the American public an affordable, reliable, low-operating cost boat that would be versatile enough to operate at displacement speeds for long distance cruising or at 20 knots for long weekend cruising. She would be big enough for six, and still have a cabin for crew. You owe it to yourself to view the "Restless" and see what she has to offer.
