Overview

The Mangusta Oceano 50 provides customers with yet another option in the steel displacement series, plus beneath the 500-gross-ton threshold. In addition, the megayacht offers buyers some features not found on her smaller and larger sisters.

The trideck, measuring about 164 feet (49.9 meters), has the creature comforts today's cruisers expect. These include a spacious beach club, which aboard the Mangusta Oceano 50 has three fold-down platforms, for an airier look and feel. But, the way it's arranged is unusual. You can actually walk around the outside perimeter when all three hatches are down. This would be handy if you're using your mobile phone's camera to video your kids on the watertoys, and they blast past you in going around the yacht.

Another unusual arrangement is the foredeck swimming pool. At first glance, you wouldn't even know it's there, because of plentiful slatted teak. It's beneath the teak—and it's actually primarily the toy garage. It can hold two PWCs as well as a tender upwards of 6 meters (20 feet) LOA. When the toys go in the water, though, the crew can fill the hold with water, then activate counter-current jets. Finally, loose lounges can group together just at the water's edge. Check out the arrangement in the video below.

Whatever you choose, long range is at your disposal. The Mangusta Oceano 50 should see a best range of 4,000 nautical miles at 11 knots. The twin MTUs should permit a max speed of 16 knots as well.
