Overview

The Edgewater boats are known for being an all-around great use boat for fishing cruising and family. Built to take whatever you throw it. It is rugged, has no wood, and excellent glass work. Edgewater uses a stringer system that its calls "Permagrid," which is essentially an interlocking grid that combines longitudinal stringers with transverse beams, creating opposing right angles. All Edgewaters are built with either Nidacore or Klegecell coring, and the 225 has over eight layers of glass in the keel. The combination of solid construction, exemplary fit-and-finish, and practical fishing features add up to a boat that's hard to beat. Edgewater's 225 CC should definitely be on the short list of anyone looking at a boat in this size range.
