Overview

- We set out in traditional Rosborough style to incorporate the design and engineering from our proven professional series craft to deliver the unconventional Wild Islands series of adventure boats with unmatched durability, safety and quality.
- Our entire design-to-build process, including material selection and our resin infusion methods, are engineered and tested to exceed the demanding needs of our professional series customers operating in the harsh North Atlantic.
- From our roots in building boats for the most discerning yacht owner to our evolution into maritime police and naval vessels, we know that rigorous quality assurance and process control provide the best product to our owners.
- While we utilize modern materials and build techniques, all of our assembly and outfitting is done by true craftspeople who have been trained by the generations before and who take true pride in every boat they build.
- The Wild Islands hull design incorporates a 21° Deep-V continuous deadrise hull form and a hydro step flat at the keel with lean bow sections and sharp forefoot ensuring very soft entry into rough seas providing unmatched comfort and safety.
