Overview

The Fairline Squadron 62 invokes the secure and confident feeling of a much larger boat - especially when passengers walk around the solid, wide, bulwark-edged decks for the first time. The large elegant flybridge is sociable in the truest sense of the word, with its commanding centerline helm position, two adjoining crew seats, and a large sunbed directly in front of the helm. The design is mirrored by the oval-shaped seating and dining area, where the bar unit, sink, fridge, and electric barbecue griddle are de rigeur. Quite apart from its eight-seater settee arrangement, the spectacular saloon features a raised dining area with a six-seater table, and a separate bar area with its own fridge, icemaker, and bar stools. The central lower helm position has electrically adjustable seats, a wrap-round control console, and immediate access to the side deck through an aircraft-style side door.
