Overview

Introducing the I110, a transoceanic yacht powered by green energy for all non-propulsion systems. She can cross the Atlantic Ocean twice without refuelling, thanks to her high-efficiency wave-piercing hulls. Solar panels provide power for everything except propulsion, ensuring eco-friendly comfort onboard. The yacht offers luxury amenities, including hot tubs and a hydraulic platform for watercraft. Floeth Yachts, known for their expertise in PVC Resin Infusion technology, constructs lightweight and robust vessels. The I110 is a wave-piercing catamaran, offering a smooth ride and minimal power requirements. With opulent accommodation, speed, and environmental consciousness, Independence 110 represents the future of luxury yachting. She is currently 70% complete and has completed sea trials, she can be completed to her current specification and drawings (the shipyard estimates a cost of $4m to complete the order), or she can be purchased in her current state for $2.2m and the finishing can be completed elsewhere to the new owners preferences.
